Epilogue

“Robert R. Janes is an unafraid original who writes organically from deep in his ethical soul. He energizes us to create museums in their purest most consequential form so that they will contribute to the survival of the planet. After reading this book, his urgency will become yours.” - Elaine Heumann Gurian, The Museum Group, USA

“Robert Janes' stock-in-trade in his long and varied museum career has been upending the field's sacred cows and entrenched practices with that rare combination of persistence, rigor, courage and elegance. This collection of his writings and wanderings over his many years as a scholar-practitioner show the evolution of his own journey as well as provide an ethical framework that can guide those of us who aspire to take positive action in the world.” - Marjorie Schwarzer, Museum Studies, University of San Francisco

“This compilation alerts the museum sector to new horizons in its collective conscience. With the traditional boundaries of museum types blurring and a rising ‘glocal’ mindset, innovative attention to pressing societal and environmental challenges in a seamless past-present-future framework has become vital. Propelled by roots with Indigenous peoples and their changing landscapes, Robert Janes draws on four decades as a scholar-practitioner to deliver a wake-up call for our sector to unleash its toolkit as a force for good in the Anthropocene.” - Emlyn Koster, Director, North Carolina Museum of Natural Sciences

Museums Without Borders

Selected Writings of Robert R. Janes

Robert R. Janes

Museums without Borders presents a body of work from one of the most respected practitioners and scholars in the field with nearly 40 years of experience. Robert R. Janes explores, through his selected writings, the view that museums have a broader role to play in society than is conventionally assumed. He approaches the fundamental questions of why museums exist and what they mean in terms of identity, community, and the future of civil life. This book charts the evolving role of the contemporary museum in the face of environmental, societal and ethical challenges, and explores issues that have, and will, continue to shape the museum sector for decades to come.
