LMME Conference 2017:
Building Community Relationships

Telus World of Science, Vancouver
Monday, January 9, 2016 | 9:00 a.m.

The Lower Mainland Museum Educators (LMME) are pleased to invite you to register for its inaugural conference, Building Community Relationships. The conference aims to bring together informal educators to inspire and learn from one another.

Presentations address various members of the community, including seniors, people with disabilities, Indigenous communities and organizations, school districts, toddlers, corporate business partners, volunteers, and more. Participate in brainstorming sessions with your peers to explore problems and solutions on various education topics, such as outreach, science, art, and sustainability.

Keynote Speaker

Jill Baird is an established and well-respected educator, museum professional, activist, and community advocate. Dr. Baird, currently the Curator of Education at the Museum of Anthropology in Vancouver, has a PhD in Museum Education with a focus on collaboration between First Nations and non-First Nations museum professionals.

Dr. Baird will speak about how the idea of "landed wisdom" guides her practice across cultures and contexts; how coming to know people, places and situation offer new opportunities and requires constant self-reflection.

Dr. Jill Baird
MOA, UBC

Registration

Fees for all attendees are only $32. Your registration includes morning and afternoon snacks, lunch, and all sessions.

Register at lmme2017.eventbrite.ca

This is a green event, please bring a notepad, water bottle or coffee mug, a plate and fork.

For updates on sessions and speakers, visit the conference website at lmmeconference.com, or connect on Facebook and twitter.

A special thanks to all of our door prize and speaker gift sponsors, especially our volunteer conference committee, speakers, and Telus World of Science.

LMME
lower mainland museum educators

SCIENCE WORLD at
TELUS WORLD of SCIENCE