THE LIONS
Vancouver, B.C.

Towering 5400 feet above Vancouver's harbour, The Lions, located in the North Shore Mountains, are a familiar landmark to all in Vancouver. They were so named in Pauline Johnson's Indian Mythology because she felt they resembled Landseer's Lions in Trafalgar Square, London, England.

BEAUTIFUL BRITISH COLUMBIA, Canada

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC DOGWOOD is the floral emblem of the Province of British Columbia, and one of the trees protected by law. Quite common as a very bushy shrub less than 10 feet high, the exceptions grow to 30 feet and have flowers up to 12 inches in diameter. Blossoms appear from April to June and often again in September. The centre cluster turns into a compact group of red-beadlike berries, thus adding gay color to the tree during August and September. The wood is hard and fine grained, but has no practical use.

THE DEAS ISLAND TUNNEL

Officially opened by HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH in July, 1959. It is one part of a freeway handling 7,000 vehicles an hour between Vancouver and the International Border. It lies 60 ft. under the Fraser River and is the largest prefabricated tunnel in the world with 2,100 feet actually under the river.
